

CreatorLab

What is it?

Teesside University's CreatorLab project aims to empower multi-disciplinary connectivity and creativity in educational design, drawing upon the wealth of knowledge and skills of stakeholders from across the university to drive the evolution of Future Facing Learning.

Become a CreatorLab Fellow and shape what Education 4.0 looks like for your university
Click here for the video link

Positioning for skills and knowledge for the Fourth Industrial Revolution

CreatorLab Fellows

The CreatorLab Fellow role is an exciting opportunity available for Teesside University students to gain digital product development and project management experience on a real-life learning design project. The role itself is a short funded student-placement that sees students working in collaboration with academic staff to co-design high quality digital learning materials that contribute to the delivery of an outstanding student and learning experience.

The Role will begin February 2021 until June 2021

Through the CreatorLab Fellow role students will develop their digital design skills, working with an authentic learning design project alongside their normal curricula teaching, learning and assessment processes.

Each CreatorLab Fellow role will require the completion of 16 hours of mandatory work, which are mandatory business and legal training courses, induction to the role, and writing a final reflective report to encapsulate your learning journey at the end of the project.

The projects themselves have an allowance of up to 42 hours per CreatorLab Fellow allocated to completing the project.

“Taking on this role has taught me how to work with diverse peoples, which turned to teach me an amazing work ethics with the experience in working in an agile environment, coupled with an outstanding interpersonal communication with stake holder skills which helps me to communicate effectively, plus the abilities to work individually as well as in a team, and being flexible, confident, and finally, it has also given me the enthusiasm to take on challenging task as well as helped me discover more of myself with a problem solving skills, I believe moving forward I will be able to execute every task given”
 – CL Fellow

CreatorLab Fellows will be paid at an hourly rate of £10.72 with the hours spread between February 2021 to June 2021

